

TWELVE SUNNY HOURS WOOD BLOCK PRINTS

Companion prints from the project 12 Sunny Hours, an installation in the Sydney Royal Botanic Gardens in 2006.

The installation comprised of 12 sundials in a grid, each with an image set in the face pertaining to an hour of the sun lit day.

The companion prints are hand burnished wood block prints on mulberry paper, hand coloured with Winsor and Newton water colour.

6am - 4pm available ... alas 5pm - Happy Hour (Vodkatini? Don't mind if I do!) I don't even have a copy of ... it was extremely popular.

Individual prints $100.00

This is a great opportunity to get original hand burnished wood block prints to decorate your home or office.

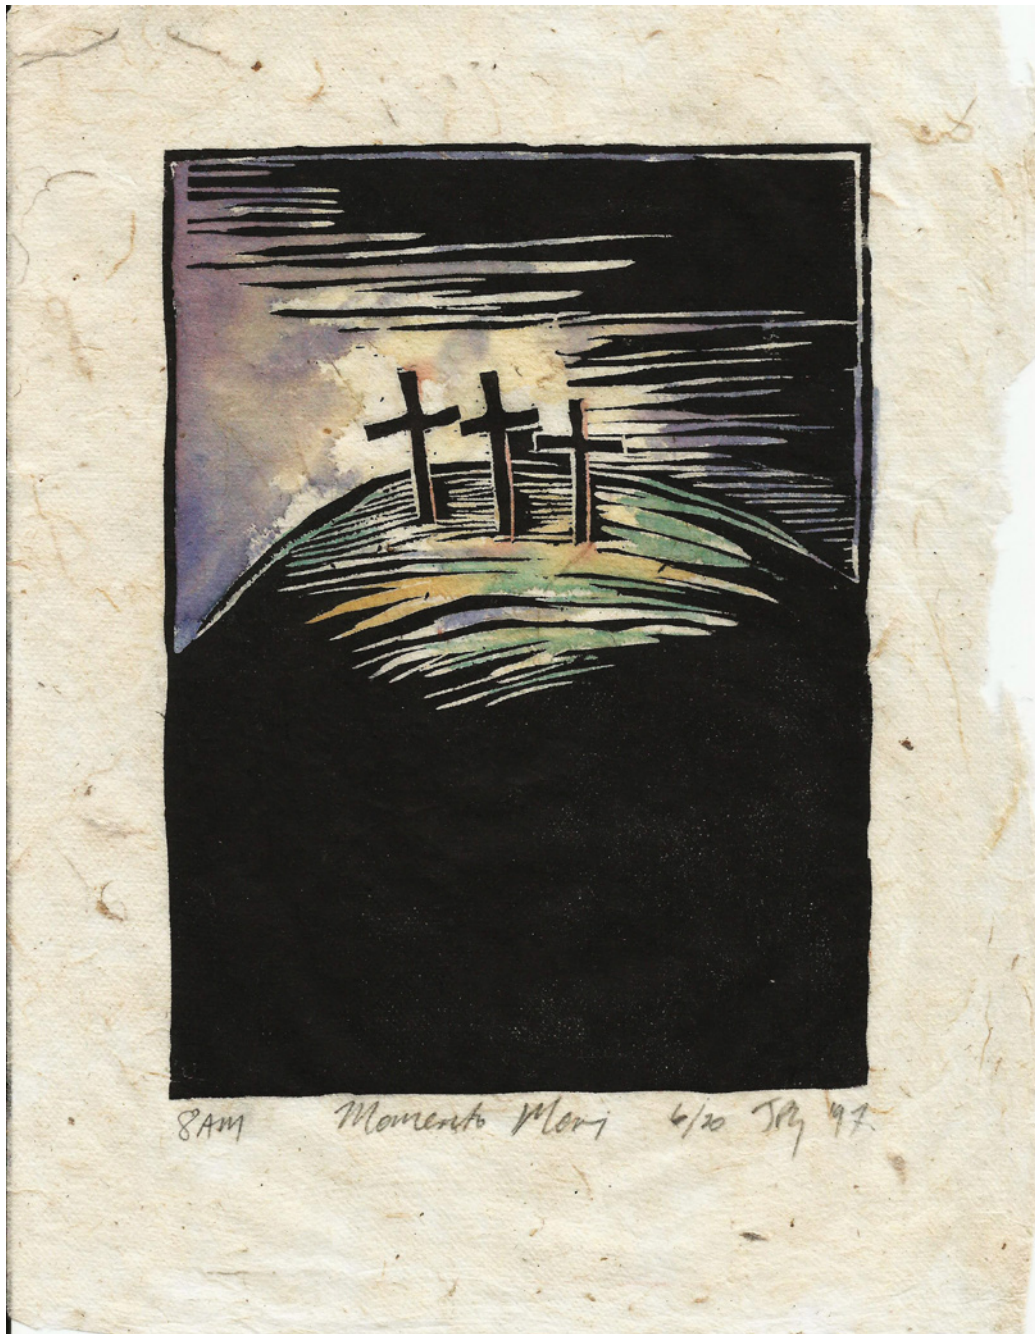

Framing need not be expensive, good frames can be sourced from many chain stores and your local framer can cut an acid free mount to fit, or simply get them to do the whole job.

6am - Remember

7am - Tempus Fugit

8am - Momento Mori

9am - Some tell time by rain and showers,
I mark time by sunny hours

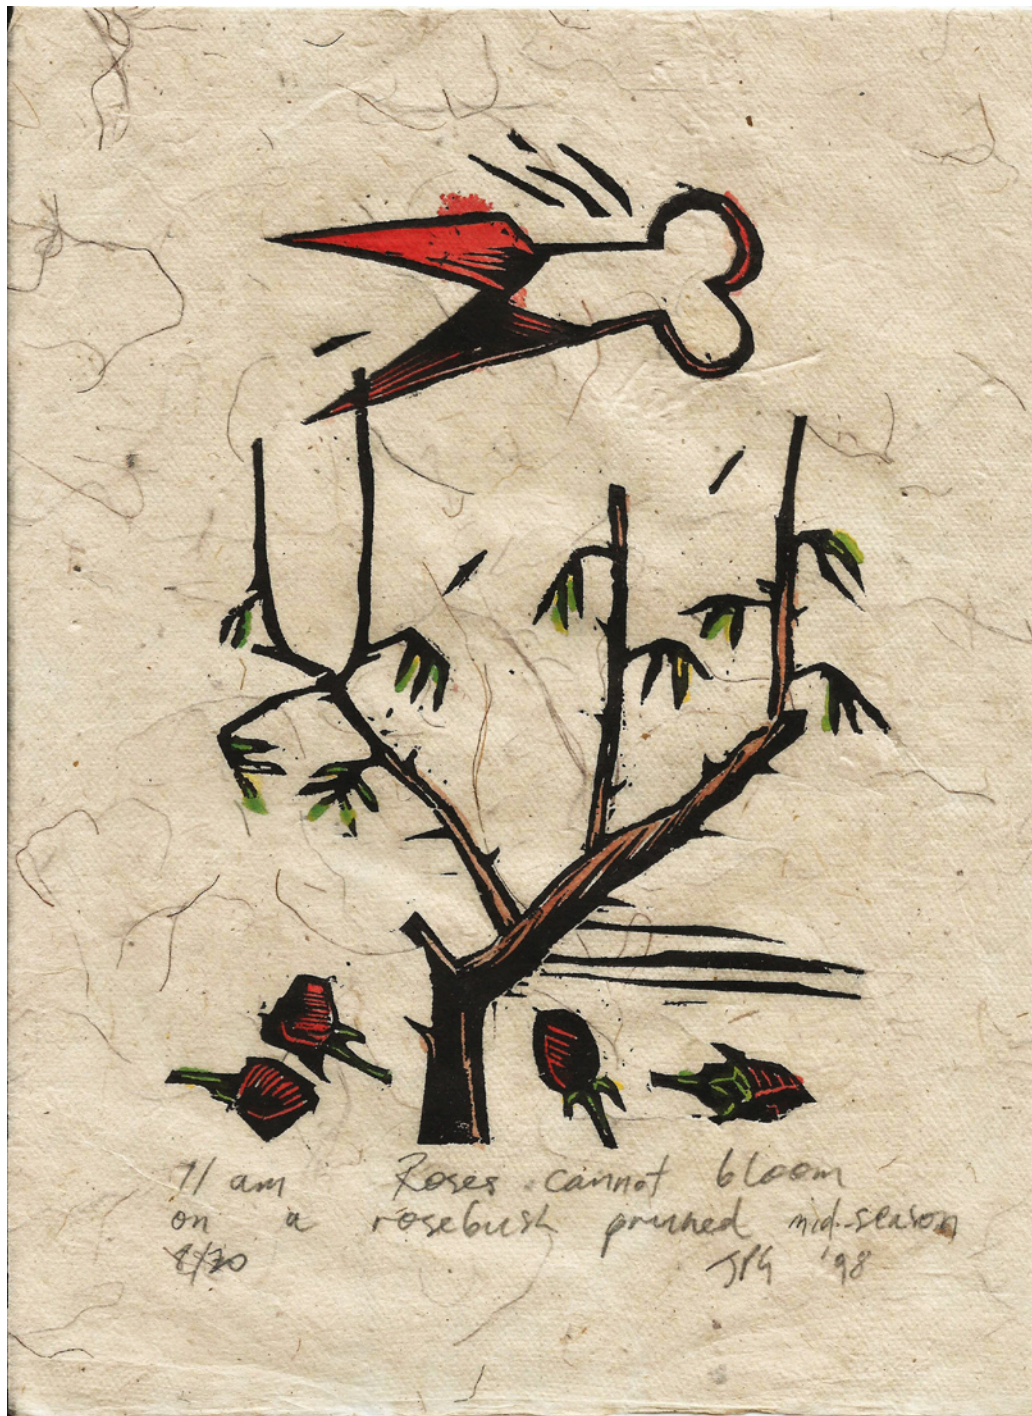

This day is different

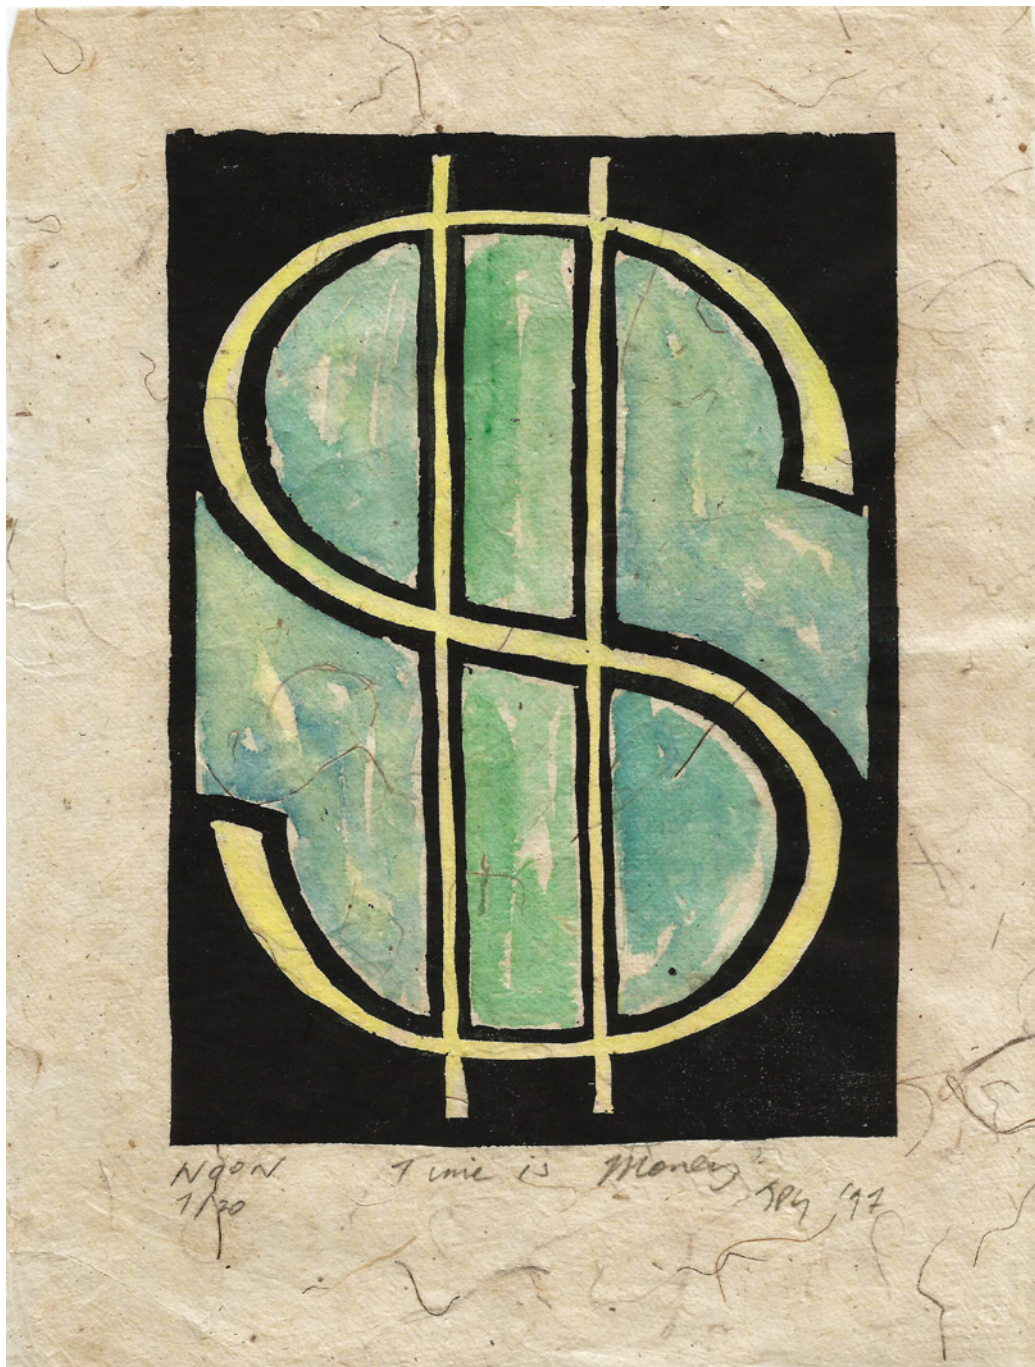

The next may be the same
6/20 586 97

10am - This day is different
 The next may be the same

11am - Roses cannot bloom on a rose bush pruned mid season

NOON - Time is money

1pm - Time changes many things
but memory like ivy clings

2pm - As a tree falls so it must lie

3pm - Universal Apology

4pm - Great gums from tiny gumnuts grow